FAIRMONT SCOTTSDALE GOLF & SPA

Scottsdale sits under more than 300 days of sun a year, and the desert wears that light well. Golf courses cut through fields of saguaro and rust-colored boulders; the air stays dry even at its warmest, and the evenings cool fast enough to make a patio dinner feel like the whole point of the day. Downtown, the pace shifts from resort quiet to gallery openings and restaurant patios once the sun drops. For three nights, you're based at one of the Southwest's most decorated resorts, with a single $500 credit to split however you like between two of the desert's signature pleasures: a round on a tour-caliber course and a treatment at one of the region's most complete spas.
