TPC Scottsdale Golf, Fairmont Princess Spa, 3-Night Stay for 2

- 3-night stay in a standard room at the Fairmont Scottsdale Princess
- Daily breakfast for 2
- Winspire booking & concierge service

Scottsdale sits under more than 300 days of sun a year, and the desert wears that light well. Golf courses cut through fields of saguaro and rust-colored boulders; the air stays dry even at its warmest, and the evenings cool fast enough to make a patio dinner feel like the whole point of the day. Downtown, the pace shifts from resort quiet to gallery openings and restaurant patios once the sun drops.

For three nights, you're based at one of the Southwest's most decorated resorts, with a single $500 credit to split however you like between two of the desert's signature pleasures: a round on a tour-caliber course and a treatment at one of the region's most complete spas.

Fairmont Scottsdale Princess

Your standard room comes with three nights and daily breakfast for two at this AAA Five Diamond property, the kind of resort built for lingering. Between rounds or treatments, there are four distinct restaurants to choose from, six pools threaded through the grounds, a pair of Jacuzzis, and a fitness center for anyone who wants to keep moving.

Well & Being Spa

Put some or all of your $500 credit here, whether that means an hour swinging gently in an aerial hammock during yoga or lying still for a massage built around a scent profile chosen for you. Afterward, the private lounge holds a wet steam room, a eucalyptus inhalation room, a Swedish dry sauna, a cool plunge pool, and a Swiss shower, each one a different way to come down slowly instead of all at once.

TPC Scottsdale Golf

This is the desert stage for the Waste Management Phoenix Open, the loudest, largest-attended tournament in golf, and the rest of your credit can go toward a round on either course that hosts it. The Stadium Course, shaped by Tom Weiskopf and Jay Morrish in 1986, still carries the tension of a course built to test the game's best. The Champions Course, rebuilt from the ground up in 2007, trades grandstands for a quieter walk through natural ravines and foothills, though the challenge holds. As Arizona's only PGA TOUR property, the conditions and service here are tuned to tournament standards, whether or not there's a leaderboard.

However you split the credit, between a round of golf, a spa afternoon, or both, three desert nights bookend the whole thing: this package hands you the version of Scottsdale most people only read about.
