European motorsport runs on heritage, and nowhere is that heritage more alive than trackside at a Porsche Sprint Challenge race weekend. Engines echo across the grandstands, the smell of fuel and rubber hangs in the air, and drivers chase split seconds on some of the continent's most demanding circuits. For four nights, you step past the fence that separates spectators from the sport and into the world the teams themselves inhabit.

Every circuit on the list has a place on the Formula 1 calendar, past or present. Red Bull Ring and Spa-Francorchamps are current Grand Prix venues, while Zandvoort, the Nürburgring, and Hockenheimring are storied former F1 hosts, giving this weekend the same stage the sport's biggest names have raced on.

Choose Your Grand Prix Circuit

Option 1: Circuit Zandvoort, Netherlands (20-24 May 2027)

Set among the dunes along the Dutch North Sea coast, Zandvoort is known for its banked corners and fast, flowing layout. Race weekend brings the circuit to life with the full Porsche Sprint Challenge field competing just steps from the grandstands.

Option 2: Nürburgring, Germany (15-19 July 2027)

The Nürburgring carries more motorsport history than almost any circuit in the world, home to the legendary Nordschleife. A weekend here puts you at the heart of German racing tradition, with the Sprint Challenge field competing on the modern Grand Prix circuit.

Option 3: Red Bull Ring, Austria (29 July-2 August 2027)

Red Bull Ring sits in the Styrian hills, where elevation changes and a mountain backdrop give spectators sweeping views of the action from nearly every vantage point on the circuit.

Option 4: Spa-Francorchamps, Belgium (26-30 August 2027)

Spa-Francorchamps winds through the forested hills of the Belgian Ardennes, one of the longest and most celebrated circuits on the calendar, with elevation changes and corners that have tested drivers for generations.

Option 5: Hockenheimring, Germany (30 September-4 October 2027)

Hockenheimring, long a fixture of German motorsport, closes out the season with fast straights and technical corners set in the forests near Heidelberg. As the final round of the Porsche Sprint Challenge season, it carries extra weight: the championship is decided here, and the weekend closes with trophy presentations and celebrations for the year's top teams and drivers.

VIP Access and Hospitality

Your race weekend includes VIP hospitality with the team that was most successful in the Porsche Sports Cup, the series that preceded the Porsche Sprint Challenge, with access to their garage throughout the event. Speak with the team manager, race drivers, and mechanics throughout the weekend and ask your questions for a firsthand look at what it takes to compete at this level.

Pit lane and starting grid access put you steps from the cars before they take the track, and grandstand seating along with additional trackside viewing points give you a front row view of every session.

Trackside Dining with the Team

Meals vary across the race weekend. The team provides catering on the first day of your stay, with a team barbecue near the garage on the third evening. For the rest of the weekend, access to the official Porsche Hospitality at the circuit brings complimentary food and beverages throughout the day, where drivers and mechanics eat alongside guests, another chance to talk racing with the people who live it.

Your Hot Lap

The centerpiece of the weekend is a hot lap in a Porsche race car on the circuit itself, with a professional driver behind the wheel. A personal video of the lap means the speed, the sound, and the view from inside the cockpit are yours to keep long after the race weekend ends.

Whichever circuit you choose, this is a weekend built around the sport itself: the teams, the cars, and the sound of a Porsche race engine at full throttle, with you inside the fence instead of outside it.
